NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Dec. 18, 1869.

That's What's the Matter. It is perfectly natural that the numerous unpolitieal and unprogressive ladies and gentlemen who take an interest in questions relating to woman, should inquire from time to time what has become of Sorosis. Has it broken up? Have the sisters quarrelled? Is it under a temporary cloud? Are gunds short? Is it sharing in the universal collapse of business? What is the matter? I will tell you what the report is, and leave you to judge for yourself. I will ask the well-read and memoryblessed reader to recollect that last June Mr. Roosevelt applied for admission into the Sorosis, and this started in the Evening Telegram the idea of getting up a cartoon burlesquing the entire correspondence. To do this it would be necessary to have the portraits of all the ladies prominently figuring in the association, and Mrs. Croly was applied to as being most likely to possess them. She had, in fact, in her possession a photographic album containing the portraits in question, and which had been presented to her by the various members. Mrs. Croly may have permitted this album to come into the reporters' hands; she may have regarded with complacency the prospect of herself and her sisters winning notoriety through the medium of a cartoon, and going down to posterity through the medium of the Telegram, fluttering in feathers and spangles, and looking more like bleached blondes than suffrageseekers. At any rate, this is the crime that is now laid to her charge, and it is stated that the cartoon was only prevented being published through the courtesy of James Gordon Bennett, Jr., whose esteem for many of the ladies induced him to refuse permission. By degrees suspicion of the part Mrs. Croly had taken came to be entertained by some of the other members, some of whom shrank from exposing their President, and some of whom gloated over the notoriety which would have been theirs had the card been printed. My own convictions are that Mrs. Croly has too much tact, not to say good feeling, as a woman to lend her countenance to such a proceeding, still less the countenances of her sisters, as she she would have been doing had she delivered up the protograph album! At the same time there has been too much smoke around Sorosis lately not to justify the suspicion that there must be some little are, and even Jennie June's promise to give a ball at her residence on the 25th of December has been vilified into an attempt on her part to put her indignant sisters in good humor. I hope the Sorosis will survive many years yet, however, to lunch and "liquor up" at Delmonico's The Giant.

After having been to see both the giants now in this city-the one at Wood's Museum and the one that is to be on exhibition next Monday at Apollo Hall-I have come to the conclusion that both are genuine, and that one is just as original as the other. For some time I was in doubt which was the most se, but I have now calmly and contentedly settled down in impartial favor of both. Perhaps the one at Wood's Museum retains a slight prejudice in its favor from the fact that I saw it first. Its position, too, was eminently touching and dignified, the hands omulating the modesty of Powers' statue of Eve, which the connoisseurs in statuary will recollect, and one eye blinking as though ashamed of the perpetual stark-nakedness to which Monsieur Cardiff found himself condemned. The rival of this chef d'œuere arrived in the city late on Thursday evening, and was on private view yesterday, as it will be to-day.

Russian opera is not an eminent success at the French Theatre, although the audiences have not been notably small. The tenor is a handsome man, and liked as much for his looks as his voice. His musical education is Italian. He is a Russian by birth, but not a Russian artist. He held a commission in the army during the Crimean war, and enough of the flavor of romance has attended his debut at the French Theatre to create in his behalf an interest among a certain class of ladies.

Apropos of opera in the abstract, I must relate a little incident, which has never before been made public, in regard to M. Maretzek's season. One of the important stockholders-Mr. Queenswater, I believe-was being talked to the other day about the success of the season. "Has Mr. Maretzek fulfilled his promises in regard to the new pieces he has brought out?" was one of the questions. "Pretty well," answered Mr. Queenswater. "He brought out William Tell and Pipele. But he didn't bring out Manzillo !"

Elaborate investigation induces me to believe that Masanielle was the opera intended by the gentleman, whose devotion to business as stockholder in the Academy has left him no time to become familiar with the titles of Italian operas. ALI BABA.

SITUATED at the southwest corner of Broad and Walnut streets is one of the finest grocery establishments that this or any other city can boast. The proprietors, Messrs, Colton & Ciarke, are masters of the trade, they both having spent years at the business. Their goods are all first-class, and none other than the fines sugars, spices, coffees, and teas are obtainable. In the line of fruits their stock is unsurpassable; canned, jammed, marmaladed, or jellied, you have but to express your wish and it is gratified. Special attention is paid to the importation of foreign delicacies; cheeses, potted game, pates de folo gras, Queen and French olives, and luscious Almeria grapes line their shelves or rest in boxes around the store. In fact, the place is to the epicure what the British Museum is to the naturalist, with only this excep tion, that what here is seen can be feasted on not by the organ of one sense alone, but by several. The firm sup plies groceries to families in any part of the city, and an order entrusted to them will be well and promptly filled.
